Quint Hard at Work.

With the 1919 football season a memory, aspirants for the Indian varsity quint are "rimming" them with a sparkle of mid-season form after a week of light practice. Although Coach Driver has had his men engaged in scrimmage work each evening during the week, the work-outs in general have consisted mostly of shots from the mid-floor with a follow through.

All of last year's Varsity are present including Pierce, Hudson, Fentress, Henley and Brooks. The last named two will not report for practice until after Christmas on account of injuries. Among the other letter men are Close, center, and Goslee, Guard. The new men who are showing up to advantage are Young, Johnson, Cook, Copeland and Wallace from Hampton High, the school that has probably the best record of any in the State in the athletic line.

These men have also had much experience in this popular branch of sport, while in the Army, all being over-sea men. Joyner, Garrett, Lyons and Briggs of last year's scrub team are showing up exceptionally well and bid fair to make it lively for the Varsity men in holding their positions. Sission, "Piggie" Pierce and Clark of this year's material are also displaying form which show basketball experience.

Prospects seem very bright at this time for a winning team, and when the championship series roll in after the holidays we're looking for the old cup to find a home with Indian hospitality.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Resolutions adopted by the students of the College of William and Mary in Chapel assembled, December 5th, 1919.

Whereas, in His infinite love and wisdom it has pleased Almighty God to call from this earth our friend and fellow student, John Edward Hudgins, Jr., we, in Chapel assembled, do hereby express our tenderest heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

And be it further resolved:

First: That these resolutions be read in Chapel assembled.

Second: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be published in the Flat Hat.

Committee:

R. P. WALLACE,
R. W. COPELAND,
W. H. CHEATHAM.

IT IS SAID:

That due to the heavy rains and cold weather Thorp's fraternity has been dissolved.

That "S. O. S." still continues to give us examples of the Same Old Stuff.

That we have never seen a purple cow and we never hope to see one but judging from the milk we get there certainly must be one.

Phi Beta Kappa Address

In accord with their annual custom, the Virginia Alpha of the Phi Beta Kappa Society commemorated the anniversary of the founding of the society by appropriate exercises. One of the features of this yearly program is an address by some distinguished member of the society and it is with no small amount of pleasant anticipation that this event is looked forward to by a considerable part of the student body.

This year the Society was fortunate in having Professor Thornton, head of the department of Civil Engineering of the University of Virginia, as their speaker.

Professor Thornton was introduced to his audience by Judge Duke. As might have been expected the subject of his thesis was the relative importance of science in comparison with the so-called Humanities.

In the course of his address he traced the ascendancy of the ancient empires and their subsequent totterings and eventual failures all for the reason that some keystone of stability had not been found. Tracing the rise of Grecian culture, art and literature, its decline; the rise of imperial Rome to end in like oblivion, and down to the present day when we find in our own civilization a parallel case with nothing from the past to contribute as a staying force. This force Professor Thornton sees in modern science. To him it is the "be-all and end-all" of the complexities of the modern situation, the key which will solve the accumulated problems of the present day.

To him the study of science is of greater importance than the study of Latin and Greek literature ever can be. In the course of the address many startling statements were made among which was the recommendation that the instruction of Greek and Latin be placed in the hands of students and not the highly specialized. His contention was based on the assumption that despite the desultory and unscientific instruction that is given in the English Bible by untrained and unskilled teachers the results put the product of the teaching of the trained Greek and Latinist to shame. He also stated that the function of the classical instructor should be to give the student the inspiration and substance of classic knowledge without subjecting the generality of students to the painful process of approach to this beauty that is necessitated by our collegiate and secondary systems of instruction in the classics.

This address has proven to be the most interesting of the season and has served as the bases for considerable academic discussion on the points in question. It was delivered in masterful English with a fluidity of diction that showed a more than usual knowledge of those genitive singulars and ablative absolutes that he would have us dispense with.

While it is our function to abstract and summarize this intensely interesting address and not to act in the

Locals

Alf Mapp and "Prex" Wilson were week-end guests of their fraternity, S. P. E.'s.

Lloyd Warren spent Saturday and Sunday at the college.

Lieut. Stanton L. Bertchey, one of the best quarterbacks who ever romped on Cary Field, spent four days here last week. He expects to remain in the Army and to sail shortly for Siberia.

Miss Mable Murphy spent the week-end at her home in Portsmouth.

Earl B. Thomas and W. H. Dierhoi were among the attendants at the Phi Beta Kappa meeting.

capacity of reviewer, yet we cannot refrain from saying that as a novice in science to our limited knowledge, while the address was rich in suggestion it was on the whole quite unscientific in many points. As a man of science we would have expected the speaker to have sustained his startling statements by something more than scholarly opinions. We feel that in view of the fact that these statements have been interpreted by many as a summary of a deep seated antagonism to classical training, that it was far from this. We are sure that Professor Thornton is as consistent a supporter of classical training as are many classical fadists.

On the whole the address was very much worth while and as students we await the next intellectual treat that this august body known as the Phi Beta Kappa Society has in store for us.

INDIAN FOOTBALLISTS GIVEN DELIGHTFUL BANQUET

Close Elected Captain of Next Year's Eleven.

The entire football squad numbering thirty-nine men were given a delightful banquet in the college dining hall Thursday night at 7:15. The menu consisted of delicious raw oysters, creamed tomato soup, Smithfield ham, celery, roast chicken with cranberry sauce, hot rolls, sliced sweet potatoes, olives and pickles, coffee and mince meat pie.

Dr. Chandler, Coach Driver, retiring Capt. Copeland and Capt.-elect. Close each made short and pointed talks on the clean football exhibited by the Indian eleven this season, the spirit displayed by the whole squad and the prospects for next year.

Coach Driver stated in his talk, that not least among the things derived on the football arena was the habit of "taking your medicine" like a man, clean living and fair play.

Dr. Chandler followed Coach Driver and complimented the team for its fighting spirit and congratulated the squad upon having as their mentor, a man who stood for such high ideals on the gridiron enclosure.

The letter men of this year elected W. K. Close as their leader next year. A. H. Goslee was elected alternate.

Have you an ideal? A high ideal? Some one to whom you can look up to and whose character you would like to resemble? If not, let not another day pass until you have placed before you as an example of that which you most admire in men, the life of some great Christian man.

Everyone should have an ideal; some high ideal, chosen in the form of a life known to his or her own environment; a man whose life has been a credit to his good and a blessing to his fellowmen. Men of this type are not so hard to find. In every community there is always one, if not more, to whom one might look up to as a goal for his endeavors.

Can we always make a wise and righteous decision in the face of temptation and in a situation demanding an "older head"? How easy it is to turn to your ideal and ask yourself in his physical absence "What would he have done in this case?" An answer will be forthcoming. It will be a product of your own ideas manufactured from precious material of your ideal.

"Men become fake," says Charles Kingsley, "if they live with liars; cynics if they live with scorners, mean if they live with the covetous, affected if they live with the affected, and actually catch the expression of each other's faces." Which, has to do with the company we keep and is traceable to that old adage worded as you remember, birds of a like plumage, etc. We are not likely to have an ideal if we associate with any of the above groups. They pull us down so that we cannot appreciate anything high.

Pick out your ideal and fashion your life and actions by it; for the struggle to attain the character of our ideal is one of the greatest uplifts to the mind or:—

Build for yourself an ideal,
Mold each virtue with care;
When it's high as your heart can make it,

Make all your decisions there.
Send there your queries and questions,

Especially when you're in doubt;
And you'll find your ideal always
Ready to help you out.

INDIAN ARROW-HEADS.

Most frequently heard on the campus this week: "Who are you dragging to the dances?"

Somebody said, when asked what part of speech a kiss was, that it was a conjunction.

If you doubt that the truck ride to King's Mill wasn't a "screaming" success ask anyone of the twenty-four present. Of course the girls afforded the "screaming" part of it.

Heard in front of The Palace:
"Ray, Ray, rah! rah!

Do you believe that "it is better to have lied and be loved than never to have been loved?"

Bill Christian and Dick Henley have invented two new dances which are to be known as the Cow Catcher and the Donkey Sizzle.

News Notes.

A man and a woman walked into the courthouse this week. Neither have gained consciousness yet.

Two boys were injured on the green.

The couple have been married two years and now have a darling little hedge running around the house.

Three men on the All-Eastern football team wasn't so bad. Copeland, Close and Wallace are about as good as we hope to give the once-over in this circuit.

PLANS FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING ACCEPTED.

Williamsburg has made another step in the welfare of her children and in the progress of her community. The plans for the new high school building drawn by Carneal and Johnson, architects of Richmond, have been selected. The building, while colonial in architecture, is to be modern and up-to-date in every respect. The members of the different organizations here are to be congratulated for having made the issue a success, especially The Woman's Club, as it has been through the efforts of its members that a new building became possible.
